REELECTION IDEA SWINGS VOTE ON BONUS IN SENATE
BETTER POLITICS NOT TO OPPOSE FUND FOR VETERANS.
CANT BEAT VETO Opponents Not Likely to Change Stand; More Than One-Third.

By DAVID LAWRENCE. Copyright, 1922, The Janesville Gazette.

Washington.—Political courage or political wisdom? This is the question which the soldier bonus bill has raised as the table of affirmative and negative votes in the senate is examined. Individual senators regardless of party affiliation, decided for themselves whether or not they thought it was better politics to vote for or against the bonus, as the party leaders themselves did not attempt to secure party harmony; but the record shows that of the senators up for re-election this fall more voted for the soldier bonus bill than against it.

CANDIDATES BACK LAW ENFORCEMENT

All Aspirants for Sheriff and District Attorney Pledge Selves to "Dry" Regimes.

The candidates' meeting held at the court house Friday afternoon, by the Rock County League of Women Voters was interesting despite the non-appearance of six out of nine candidates who had previously addressed a meeting at any time. The three candidates present to speak were A. E. Garey, candidate for the state senate; Fred C. Henderson, candidate for sheriff, and Herbert L. Cox, candidate for district attorney. Twenty-five women and a half-dozen men attended. Mrs. O. D. Bates, county chairman, presided, and Mrs. E. J. Manning acted as secretary.

The two candidates for county officers amplified the replies they had previously sent in response to the League questionnaire. The chairman then read the replies sent by the candidates who failed to appear. Mr. Garey devoted his time principally to a discussion of the prohibition question and was not embarrassed by being asked as to his reasons for supporting wet candidates for U. S. senator and governor or his attitude on other issues.

The questions asked the candidates for sheriff were:

1. Would you carry out the strict enforcement of the Sevenson law?

2. Would you do your utmost to gather evidence in the suspected violation of this law?

3. Would you consider it a part of your duty to clean up road houses and other places of questionable character?

4. Have you any suggestions in regard to the detection of the transportation of liquor?

5. If you have ever held public office, what facts can you give that will show your good intentions?

6. Do you believe in the honest enforcement of the commitment law?

All four candidates, Fred Beley, Charles R. Handy, Floyd C. Henderson and Roy J. Worthington, gave emphatic affirmative replies to the first three questions. In reply to question four, Beley urged that every citizen should promptly report any fact that might come to his knowledge regarding any suspected violation of the law and especially in connection with the transportation of liquor which would help the sheriff to be more efficient in the enforcement of his duties. Handy urged that a more careful patrolling of all public highways and a more careful checking up of automobiles driven by questionable characters should result in the discovery of more cases of transportation of liquor. Worthington offered no special suggestions but wrote that he favored a strict enforcement of the law in this regard.

In his address Henderson said he hadn't worked out any special plan but was sure it could not be done by a sheriff who went around with his eyes closed and that he has no intention of pursuing the latter course if elected.

In answer to question five, Beley cited his record as sheriff in 1919 and 1920. Handy cited his record as a police official in Janesville for seven years. Worthington referred to his record as a deputy sheriff. Henderson told the women he had never held public office but had served in the war, and that as the father of two children he was interested in making the community a safe place for all children.

In reply to question six, Handy and Henderson answered "yes" without qualifications. Beley said the law should be changed so as to give the judge some discretion in the matter, and Worthington answered "yes" but does not believe that an offender should be permitted to be hired as a cook in violation of the law.

Replies of Cox and Dunwiddie: The questionnaire sent to the candidates for district attorney was the same as that sent to the candidates for sheriff, except that question six inquired if the candidate favored a vigorous prosecution of all law violators.

The written replies of the two candidates did not vary materially from their oral statements. In his address Herbert Cox told of an incident he had witnessed in connection with a certain roadhouse near Janesville, while on his duty as a deputy sheriff, and stated that it ought not to be difficult to secure ample evidence to close up places of this type. He also informed the women that in his opinion the efficiency of a district attorney could not be measured by the number of prosecutions brought or the nature of the cases. He stated he had never held an elective office, but he had served in the World war. As proof of his dry proclivities he said he had directed the local dry campaign in Beloit in 1916 and believed in the principle of prohibition.

In his written reply to the questionnaire, S. G. Dunwiddie cited his record during 1921, stating he had prosecuted 749 cases and secured 588 convictions, there having been 78 acquittals, while 71 cases were pending at the end of the year.

Peaceful Possession

Isn't it true that the removing of doubts is one of the most valuable forms of store service? Old Mr. Doubt is a mighty annoying gentleman to have around—he can play havoc with "peaceful possession" of the things we buy.

Owning a thing and enjoying it are two different conditions. Mental satisfaction, no less than physical use, is a test of value.

It's mighty comfortable to feel that our customers buy with serenity—safe from doubts or regrets.

The Value of Human Life

What is the value of human life? It cannot be measured by any medium which is in common use. There are so many things that enter into the consideration that we find ourselves lost in a maze of conflicting thoughts when we consider the problem. One may say that the loss of the eyesight is a damage which is considered by the average man and covered by his accident insurance policy to the extent of ten thousand dollars. A like valuation may be put upon other organs, yet in the face of this we see the spectacle of a fifty thousand dollar heart balm being granted by our Courts, and so our basis of computation is entirely changed. The final conclusion is, that human life is a thing which cannot be valued. It is not on the market. No one would sell it for the most fabulous sum because as soon as it is sold the capacity for appreciating the remuneration would be lost.

Do you realize that disease is a partial loss of life? Do you know that when an organ functions abnormally, it is expressing only a part of the life which it should cannot possibly enjoy the maximum enjoy? Have you ever considered that this loss of the full expression of life is a thing upon which no value can be placed? When we think of the matter seriously, this is our conclusion, yet daily we jeopardize our lives and place ourselves in conditions where we presson of vitality. This condition wherein life is only partly expressed is due to an inability of the nervous system to properly function. It cannot express the maximum vitality because pressure exists on some of its nerve trunks. What is the logical thing to do? Isn't it logical to remove the pressure existing on nerve trunks, thus permitting the full expression of life in the tissue cells?

The Chiropractor is the only health practitioner who is capable of removing the pressure from the nerves and permitting normal expression of life. With an inestimable value upon life, you cannot afford to neglect your body, to continue to suffer, when your Chiropractor can release this nerve pressure and thus permit your enjoying the maximum health.

The Chiropractor's office will be closed until September 5th. During this period it will be entirely redecorated.

Theater patrons next week will see the following pictures:
Monday through Thursday—Harold Lloyd in "Grandma's Boy."
Friday—Feature picture and vaudeville.
Saturday and Sunday—Vaudeville and comedies.
Monday and Tuesday—"The Trap," with Lon Chaney, and "The Speed Girl," with Bebe Daniels.
Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday—

SCENE FROM "MY WILD IRISH ROSE"
Here is pretty Pauline Starke registering surprise very movingly. On her right Pat O'Malley, as Conn the Shaughraun in the new special production, "My Wild Irish Rose," has just brought her some amazing news. The story is an adaptation from the world-famous melodrama, "The Shaughraun," by Dion Boucicault, the well-known Irish play-right, actor and manager. It tells of life in old Erin in the early years of Queen Victoria's reign.

day—"Our Leading Citizen," with Thomas Meighan, and "A Day's Pleasure," with Charlie Chaplin.
Friday, Saturday and Sunday—"Borderland," with Agnes Ayres, and vaudeville.
Monday through Wednesday—"My Wild Irish Rose."
Thursday through Saturday—"They Like 'Em Rough," Viola Dana.

Another holiday next week, will see many more attending the show than usual, but it will not be the holiday alone that draws the crowd, for each house is putting on an unusually good program for Monday and previous and following days of the week. While there will be many Labor day activities in the city, many people always celebrate any kind of a holiday by resting and seeing a movie.

usually good program for Monday and previous and following days of the week. While there will be many Labor day activities in the city, many people always celebrate any kind of a holiday by resting and seeing a movie.

With the first of September, an anticipatory air of coming things seems to be in the air. Perhaps it is just the change of seasons, but in the moving picture industry it is something concrete. All summer producers have been making plans for an immense season and that will start at once. Some magnificent and elaborate, as well as the less extravagant, true-to-life pictures, are expected by the public. The first of these are playing New York houses now and will be seen here in the late fall. By Christmas time the height of the season will be reached. It is expected.

Critics in Chicago are predicting a starry future for the spoken drama, and it is hoped that Janesville residents will have opportunity to see some of the best of last season's and some of this season's Chicago attractions. Some have already been shown the city, to be seen at the Myers, while others will doubtless be booked.

The ban placed on all actors on the Keith vaudeville circuit, against cracking any jokes about prohibition would have a big effect if placed on vaudeville seen in the city. Prohibition has a place equal to any other act in the dialogue of vaudeville comedians appearing here, and it is very hard to avoid as they have on that circuit, playing mostly the east.

said that Lloyd has always insisted on having a story in his pictures; consequently a plot runs through "Grandma's Boy." Some of the scenes are on the farm, some in the city. The title tells a great deal about the picture, and "Grandma" has a big part in it. She is played by Anna Townsend, while Mildred Davis has her usual part as Lloyd's sweetheart.
Enough superlative phrases have been used on this picture—it will be up to the audiences next week to coin some new phrases to take the place of "the funniest picture I ever saw," etc.
According to present indications, the summer policy of having vaudeville start its three-day run on Friday will be continued for some time. It has been found successful with summer audiences, and will probably be so with winter ones. The double features on Friday have proven especially successful, and some of the pictures shown have been so commended that return showings were given.

Stage and Screen

will be the first anniversary of the whole week will be national Fair-amount week and is being inaugurated at the end of the week—Friday, Saturday and Sunday. vaudeville months will be resumed. In addition to all this a week's bill of unusual merit has been booked. "The Man of a Thousand Faces" because of his ability to delineate character. In "The Trap" he has a part which enables him to appear at his best. Love, hate, revenge, a transition from a simple-hearted child of the open into a well in human form, with love then transition through that love into a kind and generous father—these form the motif of "The Trap." This picture is said to have elicited the best acting and the acting of the supporting cast is excellent, all combining to make the picture one of the triumphs of past months.

As an added attraction will be "The Speed Girl," a picture of an opposite type to "The Trap." Bobe Daniels has one of her usual light and entertaining parts. A large cast figures prominently and the vivacious acting of Miss Daniels will put pep into anyone.

The double bill for the mid-week will be altogether funny. Almost everybody in the country has read stories by George Ade. It may be news to some of them, though to know that he is writing stories for the screen, of which "Our Leading Citizen" is the first. Critics have ranked it high and Janesville patrons have been anxious to see it. It is a new production, the latest of Thomas Meighan. One critic says of it: "It is a picture in its way remarkable. But taken in comparison with the 'specialties' the million dollar picture which have crowded the two picture screens during the past season, it is a hugely enjoyable comedy. Those who see 'Our Leading Citizen' will want more like it." Theodore Roberts and Lola Wilson ably support Mr. Meighan. One of the best best-loved stars of the picture is of small-town life.

Then with it will be seen "A Day's Pleasure," one of Chaplin's best pictures. It is the one that has much to do with an automobile and getting stuck in the tar at the main corner of the town.

Fans and critics alike have been anxiously awaiting "Borderland." Not because they knew anything about that picture, especially, but because they have been waiting for a picture of a picture to catch up to her beauty. There are too many in the city on their beauty to become favorites, and nobody has wanted Agnes Ayres to do so. Perhaps the realized idea, for "Borderland" is an achievement for her in acting. In it, she plays three parts, and she does so well that it is said to be so excellent and unusual that all three characters are brought into the picture at exactly the right time and in the right manner to make a pleasing impression. The picture deals somewhat with sentimentalism and the return of the dead. Milton Sills supports Miss Ayres.

This is one of the big productions that will be seen in conjunction with the vaudeville. Consequently, the schedule is being altered somewhat, and instead of three changes per week, will be made. Vaudeville will run Friday, Saturday and Sunday, and some big motion picture feature will be seen the first four days of the week.

AT THE BEVERLY

The Beverly is running as a first-of-the-week, and on Monday, a picture that should be well-liked by the majority of Janesville people. A picture that is in his heart, has a deep respect for Ireland, and the old Irish traditions and humor. Some say so much to be admired. Some say against the present movements in Ireland, but those things that typify Ireland to most people are universally respected. It is of these things that the picture, "My Wild Irish Rose," is made up of, and that it is the reason why all should like it.

If for nothing else, the scenery would be worth seeing. The picture is a picture of Ireland, and the producers had a rich opportunity for some beautiful scenes of Irish country-side which they made the most of. There are so many things—thatched-roof cottages and small mountain lakes that seem to be typical of Ireland, that scenery such as is seen in this picture brings to the mind instantly the spirit of the whole production.

A beautiful love-story is woven through the picture, and in fact, the picture is a picture of it. Those who saw Dion Boucicault's famous stage success, "The Shaughraun," will remember the days of Queen Victoria. The picture has also been coupled with the song to which it was dedicated, "My Wild Irish Rose," and this song will be sung as a solo during the showing of the picture.

Among the stars in the picture are Pat O'Malley, Helen Howard, Maude Emery, and Pauline Stark. The vaudeville adds a great deal to the humor of the production.

The Beverly is offering but two pictures a week, but they are both large productions. The other one, "They Like 'Em Rough," will please all admirers of good exciting and all admirers of well told and well acted. There is little doubt as to the acting, the reading of the story assures one of its entertaining qualities. Viola Davis is going to marry the first man she sees, and the fact that he is a lumberman does not detract her. But she had not counted on the marriage service, and complications ensue. How she gets out of them forms the greater part of the picture.

"My Wild Irish Rose" is the first of a series of special productions that the Beverly is to run this fall. Among other attractions will be "Arabian Love" with John Gilbert, "Kentucky Hymn," "Belle of Alaska," and "Sisters." Larry Semon and Buster Keaton comedies will also be attractions for the future.

HAROLD LLOYD

"GRANDMA'S BOY"

A 5000-ft. Masterpiece of Laughs, Tears and Pathos.

Harold Lloyd in "Grandma's Boy" is a picture to be classified with "Way Down East," "Four Horsemen," "Orphans of the Storm," and the "Three Musketeers," with the exception that "Grandma's Boy" will appeal more to the general public as the entire picture is devoted exclusively to laughs. No gloomy or gloomy days will be in the calendar during the engagement but laughs, laughs, laughs.

No comedian has accomplished such a lengthy picture with so many laughs as Harold Lloyd. The New York World said: "It is a comparison is to be made of the funny business on our screen in the last year, honors must go to Harold Lloyd."

I take great pleasure in announcing a few facts in regard to Harold Lloyd in "Grandma's Boy." We have bought and run quite a few superb productions with very high rentals. We have bought in the past, Harold Lloyd in both his single and double-reel comedies, all the way from $15 to $250, but the price we are paying for "Grandma's Boy," his latest five-reel release, surpasses all the high rentals we have ever paid, bar none. Furthermore, we are pleased to inform you that we are showing "Grandma's Boy" ahead of Milwaukee, Madison and Chicago, with the exception of the Roosevelt Theatre which just finished a four weeks engagement. I personally recommend this picture very highly for I know everybody these days needs a hearty laugh and believe me, you will get it.

An Open Letter to the Public—

The Myers Theater has been operating under its present management one year next Monday, Labor Day, and I wish to take this opportunity to thank you all for the fine support and patronage given me the past year. It is most gratifying to have one's efforts so generally approved.

We are entering upon the second year with far greater and better things in store for you than you have enjoyed in the past. The Paramount Pictures for the coming season represent the zenith in screen masterpieces, and with their incomparable choice of stories, greatest of directors, world renowned stars, famous scenarists and wonderful studios, you may be assured of the finest entertainment you have ever enjoyed in Janesville.

I have purchased this entire group at an enormous cost, probably the highest ever negotiated in a city of this size and you will see them all at the Myers at a much less admission price than at the big city theaters and within three to four weeks of their play dates. There are five or six of these pictures produced at such a tremendous cost that the purchase price to me is so great that I will be compelled to raise the price of admission SLIGHTLY. Don't be frightened however, (I will not get the habit) for I promise you there will not be over six between now and next March and that the raise will not be over 10c. Don't forget that I depended entirely on your past support for encouragement in the purchase of these pictures at such a great price.

Our vaudeville season will begin next Friday, Sept. 9th, and will maintain the same policy as last season; a feature picture and four acts of "Advanced Vaudeville," not a comedy picture, but an honest to goodness super special feature, one of the big ones from the group just purchased, along with four real feature acts.

I have engaged an orchestra of talented musicians to play all vaudeville shows. Mrs. Pearl Rich will give you concerts on our beautiful toned pipe organ during the picture and the orchestra will come into the pit, following and play the vaudeville show. I am sure you will be delighted with this variety of musical entertainment, and will give me your hearty support, that I may continue this liberal policy.

Assuring you of my sincere appreciation of your past patronage, and truthfully soliciting your suggestions at all times for better amusements, I am pleased to subscribe myself.

Cordially yours,

Charles G. Boutin.

The Cross-Cut

A Serial Story of the Colorado Mines

By Courtney Ryley Cooper,
Copyright by Little, Brown & Co.

SYNOPSIS

At Thornton Fairchild's death, his son, Harry, learns there has been a dark period in his father's life which for almost 20 years has caused him to suffer. The secret is hinted at in a document left by the elder Fairchild, which also informs Robert, the son of the owner of the mine, that he is now owner of a mining claim in Colorado, and advising him to see Henry Beamish, a lawyer.

Beamish tells Robert his claim is a silver mine and warns him against a certain man, "Squint Rodine," his father's enemy. Robert goes to the mining town and finds an old friend of his father's in Mother Howard, keeper of a boarding house where his father had stayed. He also rescues a girl from a predicament and turned away pursuers by giving them the wrong direction. Harry, an old Cornishman partner of his father's, turns up and they visit the mine, only to find it empty with water. Fairchild also discovers that the girl he had rescued on the Denver road was the daughter of Squint Rodine. Harry and Robert are warned to go home.

"Harry," he said, and there was determination in his voice, "it's these things we got to face. Don't you think that certain people would make an investigation if we should happen to quit the mine?"

"Exactly. And how much worse would it be for them to tell the news than for us?"

"Only as to tell it," Harry was staring at his carbide flare—there's a way."

"But we can't take it, Harry. In my father's letter was the statement that he made only one mistake—that of fear. I'm going to believe him—and in spite of what I find here, I'm going to hold him innocent, and I'm going to be fair and square about it. I'm going to tell the world that I know that if my father had not made the mistake of running away when he did there would have been nothing on his mind."

"Harry shook his head. "He couldn't do much else. Boy, Rodine was stronger in some ways than that. That was in times when Squint Rodine could get a hundred men together, quicker than a cat's wink and drenched a man without him having a trial or anything. And if it'd been your father, he'd have done the same to old Rodine. And he'd have paid for it with his life. He didn't, gully, or not gully. And he looked sharply toward the younger man—"you say to go on."

"Go on," Fairchild said, and he spoke the words between tightly clenched teeth. Harry turned his light before him, and once more shielded it with his big hand. A step to the right.

"Look—there—over by the foot-wall!"

Fairchild forced his eyes in the direction designated and stared intently. At first it appeared only like a suggestion of a broken stone, lying in a straight line along the foot-wall of the drift where it widened into the stop, or upward slant on the vein. Then it came forth clearer, the thin outlines of something which clung to the heart of Robert Fairchild, which weakened him, which caused him to fight down a sudden, panicky desire to shield his eyes and to run—a heap of age-denied bones, the scraps of a miner's costume still clinging to them, the heavy shoes protruding in comically tragic fashion from the feet. A huddled, cramped skeleton of a human being!

They could only stand and stare at it—this reminder of a tragedy of a century ago. Their lips refused to move, the words that came to their past them; they were two men dumb, dumb through a discovery which they had forced themselves to face.

HER AILMENTS ALL GONE NOW

Mrs. Sherman Helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lake Michigan.—"About one year ago I suffered with irregularities and a weakness and at times was obliged to stay off my feet. I doctored with our family physician and he finally said he could not understand my case, so I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After I had taken the first bottle I could see that I was getting better. I took several bottles of the Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and I am entirely cured of my ailments. You may publish this letter if you wish."

Mrs. M. SHERMAN, Route 2, Lake, Mich.

There is one fact women should consider and that is this. Women suffer from irregularities and various forms of weakness. They try this and that doctor, as well as different medicines. Finally they take Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound, and Mrs. Sherman's experience is simply another case showing its merit.

If your family physician fails to help you and the same old troubles persist, why isn't it reasonable to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound?

Dinner Stories

"I see bet' me," said the colored preacher on Easter Sunday, twelve chicken stealers, including "Kentucky Joe." After the morning service Joe made it clear to the parson that that slanderous statement must be withdrawn if the preacher's nose was to remain intact.

At the evening service the preacher rose to the occasion. "Now I see bet' me," he declared, "the colored stealers, including 'Kentucky Joe.'"—Chicago Herald-Examiner.

A good Coue story has been told of a man who suffered from a weakness from bow legs. He was advised by a friend to repeat the Coue formula every night 3 times: "Every day and in every way my legs are getting straighter and straighter until they are as good as new."

Unfortunately he miscalculated the number and repeated the magic words 60 times every night. As a result he is now knock-kneed.—London Morning Post.

Mrs. Jones was entertaining some of her son's little friends. "Willie," she said, addressing a six-year-old who was enjoying a plate of cold beef, "are you sure you can cut your own meat?"

The child, who was making desperate efforts with his knife and fork, replied: "Yes, I think I've often had it as tough as this at home."—The Christian Evangelist.

through a fact which they hoped against, each more or less silently, yet felt sure must, sooner or later, come before them. And now it was here.

And this was the reason that 29 years before, Thornton Fairchild, white, grim, had sought the aid of Harry and of Mother Howard. This was the reason that, to all appearances only one of three disappointed miners seeking a new field. And yet—

"I know what you're thinking," it was Harry's voice, strangely hoarse and weak. "I'm thinking the same thing. But it mustn't be! Dead men don't always mean they're dead—in a way to cast reflections on the man that was with 'em. Do you get what I mean? You've said—'and he looked hard into the cramped, suffering face of Robert Fairchild—'that you were going to 'old your father's lantern' in it. We don't know! Boy, what went on 'ere. And we've got to 'ope for the best."

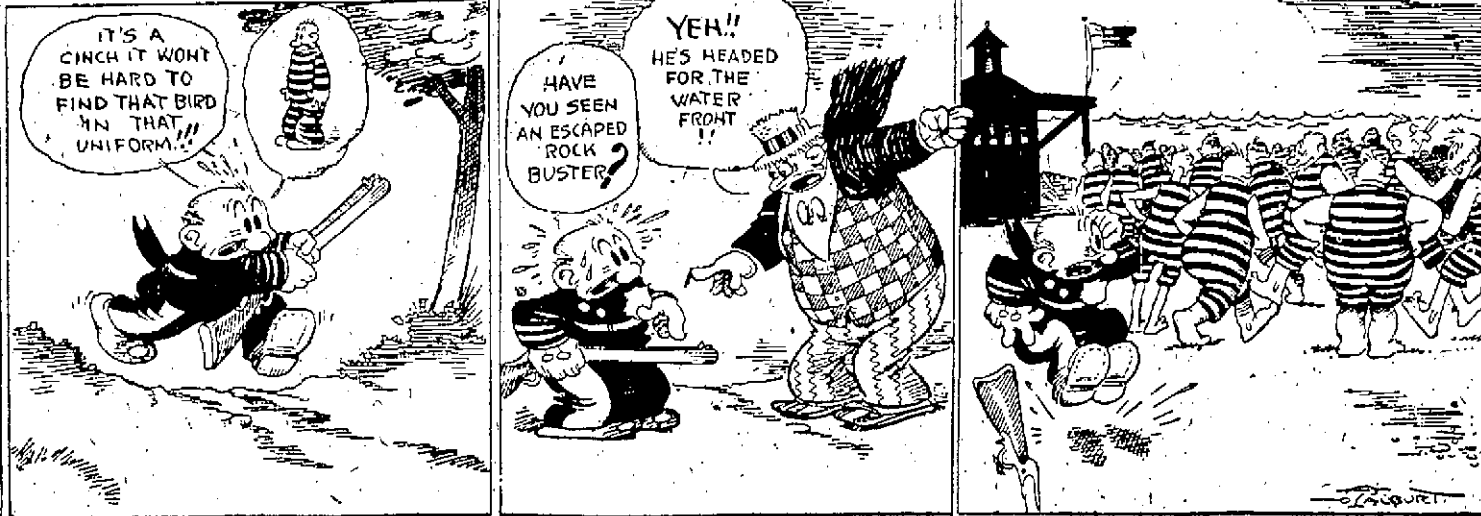

Then, while Fairchild stood motionless and silent, the big Cornishman forced himself forward, to stoop by the side of the heap of bones which once had represented a man. "The Rodine!"

BEAUTY CHATS by Edna Kent Forbes

HOME PHYSICAL CULTURE

A novel system in physical culture has recently been presented by Albrecht Jansen, formerly in charge of medical massage clinics at a number of hospitals in New York city. The system combines the essentials of gymnastics with scientific massage movements. There are also enough of the Indian Yogis Concentration exercises to keep the body-well oxygenized through this rhythmic deep-breathing.

As there is no apparatus required, and the technique is so simple to understand, the system should be superior to all others for home use. Another great advantage is the fact that this combination of three good systems means much less time consumed in practice, since each effort is contributing to the effect. There is also very little expenditure of energy, which should cause the stout people to welcome and use this system.

A moderate degree of pressure is advised at first in giving the massage movements. Then, if there is any fatigue felt at any time, the movements are stopped while the deep breathing continues. The originator of this system claims there is less fatigue experienced than with other methods in which exercise alone is used. While all the movements have been planned to keep the body in health, beauty, resulting from suppleness and grace has not been overlooked. In another Chat I will give some of the movements to reduce a full abdomen, which will also prove helpful in cases of constipation.

Mrs. C. L. As I did not receive any stamped addressed envelope, which your letter stated had been enclosed, I had to delay a reply as it had to take its turn in the column. Some of the eye must have blushed out of your hair by this time but there is nothing you could have done to improve the shade, once the dye was set. When you have gone to excess in any color when dyeing the hair, you can count on a month to throw out the deepest part of the shade.

A. R. M.—Hang-nails usually come from neglecting to remove the dead cuticle that adheres to the nail. As this cuticle is joined to the live skin, if it is not removed it will offend by up and curl off the nail. The only cure is to remove the overgrown skin before it can become an annoying hang-nail.

Widening S.: The preparation you mention is a trade article, and I do not know anything more about it. Very Anxious.—The article you mention was one that explained how to prepare a powder to dust into hair of a dark shade for excessive thinness.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Pea and Carrot Salad—Dice cooked carrots and mix with an equal amount of cooked peas. Mix with French dressing and serve on lettuce.

Cream of Pea Soup—Drain one can of peas, add two tablespoons sugar and one pint cold water and simmer 2 minutes. Rub through sieve, reheat and thicken with two tablespoons butter and two tablespoons flour cooked together, and add to pea mixture. Season with salt and pepper.

Peanut Butter—This is more wholesome than the bought peanut butter, for it is not too rich in oil. Make a dressing, as follows: Mix one-quarter tablespoon salt, one tablespoon mustard, two and one-half tablespoons sugar, one and one-half tablespoons flour. Add yolks of two eggs, one and one-half tablespoons melted butter, three-quarter cup milk and one-quarter cup vinegar. When this mixture thickens and is cool add enough finely-ground peanuts to make paste.

Milk. Dinner: Broiled Lamb Chops, Creamed Potatoes, Whole Wheat Bread, Pea and Carrot Salad, Boiled Custard and Sponge Cake. Supper: Cream of Pea Soup, Bread and Butter with Jelly or Peanut Butter, Stewed Apples.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl 18 years old. After I graduated this year I started to work for $10 a week. Now I feel as though I ought to pay my board, but I do not know how much. I have my dinner at the place where I work and so I do not eat much at home. Mother and I have agreed to do as you say.

STAR BOARDER. Circumstances should govern what board you pay. If your mother needs the money, $5 would not be too much, because you could not rent a room and have board anywhere else for that amount. If, however, your mother does not need your money badly, she should not charge you for the room and should try to figure out how much your board costs. I would suggest $5 a week.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am in love with a boy 18 I am 15. I go out twice a week and come home at 2:30, but I go with my sister and her friend. Do you think I am doing wrong? My other sister causes trouble for me. Tell me what I can do.

reputation do not let her stay out until 2:30, and in fact they do not let her stay out after 8:30. She is out with boys even in company with her older sister. Your parents love you just as much as any other parents, but they want you to have a good time and they do not want to see the seriousness of letting you stay out this way. From self-respect I would advise you to stop going out nights and to wait about two years before you have boy callers. If you are careful, little girl, you will be respected and loved by a better class of people than you can hope to claim as your friends if you go on "running wild."

From the standpoint of health you cannot afford to keep such late hours. In a few years you will look old and worn out and tire easily. If you want to be beautiful and fresh for years to come, go to bed early nights. Don't throw away the happiness and advantages of a lifetime for a few unwisely chosen pleasures.

MRS. D. H. R.: I have been unable to locate the address of the little girl. Thank you so much for your interest and sympathy in her trouble. Negotiations for an economic compact between the United States and Canada will begin soon at Brussels.

GRAIN

Weekly Grain Review.
Chicago.—Fluctuations in wheat were rapid the last week, values falling to 10¢ for fall in the direction of September wheat dropped sharply at one time on scattered liquidation and a report of a heavy crop. However, compared with a week ago, wheat was 1/2¢ lower; corn was a shade lower; oats, however, were unchanged. Corn and oats had a slight advance to 10¢ and 11¢ respectively. The market for the week on account of the relatively slow foreign demand and the general depressing character of European news. Selling sales against spring grain have been increasing rapidly with farmers' sales. The movement of both sides of the line, however, has been limited because of the transportation situation.

Corn showed considerable resistance to selling pressure and while demand was fairly good, it was not strong. The market averaged lower the first part of the week, reports of crop damage and a heavy rain, which showed a heavy reduction in the estimated yield, and a report of a heavy crop. Compared with the government's August 1 figures, tended to give the market an upward turn. Cash demand was fairly good and exporters took advantage of the market to sell in small quantities of grain from the west.

Oats reflected the action of corn. Trade was mainly of a local character. September showed relatively more strength than the December and went under the previous week. Provisions averaged lower, liquidation of September and December lard being responsible for a sharp decline, with support more or less lacking.

Chicago Wheat.—Opened firm here Saturday with the December contract showing the most strength, but when offerings increased it was not maintained. The best prices were not maintained. Trade was light during the early dealings. ## WHAT ARE YOU DOING TO HELP SUPPORT JANESVILLE'S PAYROLL?

Suppose one industry employing only 50 men should go out of business or move to another city because the people where it was trying to do business would not support it. Do you realize what that would mean in lost business to any community?

If every employee of that institution drew $160 per month, the aggregate loss would be $5,000 per month or $60,000 per year lost in wages. The banks, grocers, barbers, jewelry stores, jobbers, furniture houses, clothing houses, department stores, manufacturers, and business houses in general feel the pinch. And so does every man and woman working for wages or for a salary.

There is no denying the fact that everyone in a city depends upon the business of that city. And in turn the business of any city depends upon the individual buyers of that city for the consumption of goods. This should be remembered in connection with every article manufactured and sold in JANESVILLE for every man out from the local payroll because of lack of local support for home industries inevitably brings its reaction to one and all.

MEASUREMENTS FOR PARTS FROM RESEMBLED TIGER.

ALL POINTS MARKED DRILL FOR SCREWS. USE FLAT HEAD FOR THIS. R.H. FOR LEGS AND WHEELS. USE WHEELS BETWEEN POSSIBLE PARTS.

ALL PATTERNS CUT OUT IN 1/4" SQUARES.

HERE'S HOW YOU MAKE IT

A ferocious mechanical tiger—a toy that will make fun for everybody in the family—is easy to make. Any good wood will do. A few screws, washers, and a little paint will finish the job.

First plane the different pieces of wood to the various thicknesses shown above, squaring up adjacent edges. If only one tiger is to be made, lay out 1/2 in. squares on the wood and outline the body and legs by tracing in the lines in the patterns above. If several tigers are to be made, first make thin cardboard patterns for all pieces and then trace.

While it is essential to get good patterns, it is just as important to cut to the outlines very carefully. A rough, uneven job will not be satisfactory.

The holes to be drilled for the screws should be located directly opposite each other, otherwise the tiger will not stand evenly. In drilling, take care to avoid splitting the parts.

Assembled the toy before painting it. Test it to secure measurements for the grooves in the cart. Due to possible variations in the stock, and slight errors in the construction, this method is the right one to get the best results.

Both cart and animal should also be assembled and tested, then taken apart for painting, as it is much easier to paint the parts separately.

Paint the tiger orange yellow with black stripes. You will probably have to mix your paints to get the right color. Stripes should be tied to each piece, and after painting, they should be hung up to dry.

When all parts have dried thoroughly, assemble with the screws as before, being sure to use washers between all movable parts as suggested in the drawing. Big washers will do for the wheels of the cart.

The Totem of Black Hawk

By EVERETT McNEIL

Tom Clay and his family came from the east to settle in the Rock river valley and make a new home there. Gideon is the son, a bright boy and active in all that the new life offers. Mrs. Clay and the little sister, Ruth, with Tom and Gideon, make a happy industrious family. Silas Wegg, an old trapper and hunter, comes to visit the settlers. He brings news of disturbances of the Indians and a plot to kill the settlers. Bright, bold, and Indian-looking, carrying his baby to a distant Indian village, is lost in a storm and rescued by the Clays. When he goes away he gives to Ruth a totem to wear upon her arm. The summer goes on with many scenes and events. Ruth, playing the fields and hunting. Then Wegg comes again with more news of Black Hawk. Ben Black, the hunter, tells the Clay family that Black Hawk is now to move. Days to move. Days to move. Days to move. Silas Wegg returns and his news is still more serious. The Clay family prepares to escape. A forest fire threatens the Clay home. Back firing saves the buildings. Wegg and Gideon bring in a stranger through the wall of fire.

Big Tom and Mrs. Clay were more lonely than ever to abandon their prairie home, now that, after having overcome so many difficulties, they were beginning to feel as if they were settling down to a life of quietude. They had much more to abandon now than they had last year or the year before. The log house had been made more comfortable and homelike, the stock had increased and the area of ground under cultivation had been greatly enlarged. If they left all this now, right in the midst of the planting and cultivating season, it would mean no crops of any kind that year, and in all probability the loss of the greater part of their stock and the destruction of the house and the other buildings. This, to Big Tom and Mrs. Clay, seemed like too big a sacrifice to make on the chance of a better life in the west.

"We'll keep a constant guard, night and day, and have everything ready to start at a moment's notice, the same as we did before," Big Tom said, when the final decision to remain had been made.

"I'll be off early in the morning," Ben Black scouted, "round," Ben Black promised. "An' at th' first real host-tel move, I'll light out fer here like a streak of greased lightning!"

here on this land that we have wrested from the wilderness and the savage, surrounded by our prosperous children, you and maybe by our grandchildren. It's worth it all, Martha. All that we are enduring now!"

"You are right, Tom," and a tender light came into the brave woman's eyes. "It is worth it all, and I was foolish and weak to complain. We'll just make the best of every thing that comes, for the children's and—the grandchildren's sakes."

CHAPTER XXIV
The Hawk Totem

The sun was just showing above the eastern horizon the next morning when Ben Black arose from the breakfast table and made ready to leave the little log house on the prairie.

"I'll keep a sharp lookout," he promised, as he threw powder horn and bullet pouch over his shoulder and tightened his belt. "I'll let you know too once, if the Indians start on the warpath. But don't let up none on your watchin'. 'Til you hear from me or know for sure that the danger is over. Kint, be tew keeful when it's Indians, an' one o' their sculpin' parties might git th' start o' me, or somethin' might happen, say delay me. Now I must be goin'." and, with a roodby shake of the hand of each, he tossed the long barrel of his rifle up on his shoulder and hurried off, with the free and easy stride the wilderness gives its devotees.

Long, weary days of suspense and watchfulness—days when the eyes of some one of them were on guard every hour, night and day, and the wagon and the harness and the axes always stood ready for instant flight—now passed without the sign of a break in the peaceful quietness of the surrounding woods and prairie.

"Packer, it was turn out to be just a scare, the same the other day," Big Tom said, one evening, as he came into the house after the day's work was done, leaving Gideon on guard outside. According to Ben Black, Black Hawk must have crossed the Mississippi the first week in April—more than a month ago. I don't believe a real Indian outbreak could have been that long without something happening to catch it off. I've a notion to let up a little on this Sales of all 5-passenger car, divisions of the General Motors Corporation continue high. Buick, Cadillac and Chevrolet especially are maintaining operations at peak levels of the year. Oakland and Oldsmobile report good demand for this time of the year.

Despite the settlement of the coal strike, many large coal users, particularly in New York, are preparing to use oil as fuel this winter. The Metropolitan Life Insurance building, Macy's store, New York Laundry and Lumber Supply Company and Wanamaker's are preparing to use oil, and also a number of large apartment houses are planning to join in this movement. The Singer building was the first to use oil, about two years ago, and among other large users are McCrory's store, Ritz-Carlton hotel, eternal watching. Why Martha, what is the trouble?" and he started quickly toward Mrs. Clay, who had just turned a worried, anxious face in his direction.

"The baby is sick, Tom," Mrs. Clay's voice trembled, and her eyes turned to the bed, where the baby lay with Ruth sitting by her side, fanning her. "She was taken terribly bad about the middle of the afternoon, but is resting easier now. Tom, I'm afraid baby has that same dreadful sickness that my sister Ann died with, when she was little. Ben Black says she had just a sister died when she was coming down with it. Tom, if it is that dreadful fever, what will we do?"

Big Tom's face whitened, for a serious illness of their present situation of isolation and peril, far from a doctor, would be terrible; and he hurried to the side of the bed and bent anxiously over the baby.

"She had about a second look into the unnaturally bright eyes and, on the next, feverish cheeks and flushed forehead to tell him that his baby was a very sick child. She lay on the bed, moaning softly and turning restlessly from side to side. The moment her eyes caught sight of her father's face she uttered a glad cry, and, reaching out, caught one of his big fingers in her hot little hand and pulled him down close to her.

"Baby sick, baby sick," she said, as she reached up with the other hand and arm and pulled his head down. "Papa kiss baby. Kiss poor sick baby."

"Yes, yes," Big Tom's voice was so husky he spoke with difficulty. "Papa kiss baby. Make naughty sick go away, and he pressed his lips to the hot cheek and tenderly laid one of his big hands on the flushed little forehead and gently smoothed back the soft, moist hair. "Baby will soon be well, now that papa has come. Baby shut your eyes close to sleep."

The child smiled contentedly and obediently closed her eyes; but all most instantly opened them again with a cry of pain that went through the father's and the mother's heart. "It's a sharp knife."

There was no supper eaten that night; and Ruth and Gideon's eyes were the only ones that closed for a moment in sleep. All night long the baby lay moaning and crying, and all night long Mrs. Clay and Big Tom bent anxiously over her, doing everything that love and their rude knowledge could suggest to ease her suffering, and doing it all vainly.

With the first light of dawning day, Mrs. Clay turned a white, haggard face to Big Tom. "Tom, Tom, I'm afraid baby will die. Oh, if we only could have a doctor! He might do something to save her. Isn't there a doctor somewhere that we can get?" and she caught hold of Big Tom with both of her trembling hands. "Do—do something, can't you, to save our baby?"

For a moment Big Tom stood still. His baby lay sick, dying, it might be, for want of a doctor. His home was threatened by murderous Indians. If he went for a doctor—there was, doubtless, one stationed at Fort Armstrong on Rock Island, a good day's journey from there, although a fast horse might make it in less time—the Indians might attack the lonely log house during his absence and kill all. If he did not go, and the baby should die—But the baby was there, suffering, before his own eyes, and the Indians were only a possibility. His strong jaws came together and he stretched up with his big body.

"God, helping me, Martha, I will get a doctor," he said, quietly. "There must be a government doctor stationed at Fort Armstrong. Now get me a snatch to eat, while I'm saddling the horse and giving Gideon his instructions. And he hurried out of the house."

Stock Market Is Cheerful; Issues Reach High Mark

New York—Quoted values in the security markets this week continued to move to new high levels.

Progress by railroads in recruiting new shop forces, increased car loadings, approach of soft coal production to normal and definite assurance that no immediate seizure of mines and railroads was contemplated by the government, all contributed to the more cheerful sentiment. Progress in the settlement of the anthracite strike was reflected in improved prices of hard coal carrying railroads.

Use for oil for fuel found expression in the strength of oil shares in the latter part of the week while motor stocks improved with the announcement that August production would exceed that of July by 20,000 cars.

Steel prices are going up as was expected when the industry announced a 20 per cent increase in wages effective September 1.

Call money rates were slightly firmer due to the calling of loans in anticipation of the first of the month requirements. Time money rates and commercial collateral paper hardened a bit, the latter in good demand by out of town banks.

France's acceptance of the Belgian compromise offer on German reparations had a beneficial effect on foreign exchange rates and the price of French government and municipal securities which were weak earlier in the week.

Water Flows Uphill?

Absurd, you say? Water can't flow up hill, it flows down hill. And you are correct.

But the energy created by water flowing down hill can and does flow either up hill or down, to town or country side, in homes, factories and mines, in fact, anywhere that work is done.

And everywhere our daily life-made more enjoyable and our daily labors lightened because we are able to turn the water uphill.

This makes the position of the company which utilizes the flow of water down hill to turn the washing machines and the factory shafts many miles away, exceptionally strong. Its securities are

Printed Patterns Win Admiration For Your Sewing Hand

You have the advantage of putting style into your home dressmaking—authentic and admired style—when you see a McCall Printed Pattern.

For style is largely in the cut of the garment and cannot be reproduced exactly in the old-fashion pattern as it is by the accuracy of printing on a new McCall Pattern.

It's so simple now to trust your scissors along the printed lines—sure that you are cutting out the material right. It's easy too, for arrows point to the straight of the goods and printed notches make joinings coincide exactly.

MUST FARM BETTER DECLARES RUSSELL

American Agriculture Must be Placed on More Efficient Basis.

The farmer of the future will win through an accurate knowledge of better seed, better stock, better feeding methods, better control of waste and loss from disease, better business methods in storing and marketing his products, is the prediction of Director H. L. Russell of the agricultural experiment station of the University of Wisconsin.

Russell sees the nation entering another area of keen commercial rivalry and America, with its higher living standards, facing a world competition for necessities of life in which our products will compete with those of cheap lands and the Orient. All this, he believes, will mean that American agriculture must be placed on an efficient basis. A knowledge of cause and effect, intelligently applied, alone will do that.

"The experiment station of the future must dig deeper than before," said Russell. "The days of placer gold are largely past. The mother lode must be explored to get at the vein."

Sell 60 Holsteins To Mexican Buyers

Birchwood—Sixty head of choice Holstein cattle left Barron county for Mexico City. Forty head will be shipped from Mexico City to farms in Spain. Lloyd Krahenbuhl and O. C. Hansen accompanied the shipment as far as New Orleans.

The shipment was purchased by Dr. D. A. McLean, New Orleans, who is planning to build up herds of thorough bred cattle in Mexico and Spain.

It was said that he will make another purchase for foreign shipment in a month and will send two hundred heifers as foundations for better cattle in the two countries.

Good Dairy Show At Badger Fair

Milwaukee—The dairy department of the Wisconsin State fair, through the active cooperation of the United States department of agriculture and the National Dairy council has enabled the association to transform the dairy show at the fair from merely a show to an interesting educational exhibit of dairy products and their uses.

All premiums were withdrawn this year in the dairy department. For this reason the pyramids of cheese and the many tubs of butter are missing.

"It is our plan," said Harry Kuefer, superintendent, "to emphasize the superior food value of dairy products, by showing farmers the best modern means of turning out good products."

Waukesha County Noses Out Rock For Sweepstakes

Waukesha county had a display of horses, a full list of grains and seeds, Rock county would have repeated easily in the sweepstakes contest.

The farmers need not be apologetic for the county led until points started coming in from departments in which Rock county had few or no entries.

As soon as the full report became known the breeders sat down and started making their plans for next year.

"We'll come back with improved herds, more exhibits and being that we have been back to Rock county," they said. The county learned its weak points and planned to strengthen.

Wins With Ayres.

Waukesha deserves full credit for winning. It had a grand display of dairy cattle—Holsteins, Jerseys and Guernseys—and best Short-horns from the Anoka herd, Waukesha, owned by Frank Harding, secured high. What pulled the county through over Rock county was the 1,700 points scored on Ayres.

Another year will see Waukesha back as a blue ribbon winner with full county show herds of the dairy and beef breeds, entries of four breeds of swine, an exhibit of cattle, a county booth and more attention paid to grains and seeds.

"Getting second place this year will make Rock county farmers work harder," declared Tom Campbell. "You have the stuff to win more of it out. Your showing this year was remarkable and your advertising splendid. Certainly you are leaders."

Plan for International.

The outstanding feature of the Rock display was the financial success of making the fair circuit. Most of the herds paid their way and only a limited amount will have to be taken from the funds set up by bankers, business men and newspapers to help the small breeders show stock. Only in a few places did Rock county stock fail to place and it must be remembered that the county had more than two to six times as many entries as there was prize money. In one contest with Holsteins, there were 21 age cows valued from $100 to $1,000 before the judges started to pick the winners. It took good animals even to have a look in.

Sheep, Shorthorn and Hereford cattle raisers are now making their plans for the Chicago International. No other county came near competing with Rock in sheep, and the bulk of the Shorthorn ribbons came here. The stock will be taken home after the Rock county fair at Evansville and then culled and improved for the International. Stock that has come through the fair circuit in good condition will be taken to the Evansville exhibition and a few entries to the Walworth county fair.

Win With Herefords.

On Herefords, Rock county scored high with the stock from the Robinson and son herd near Evansville. This veteran breeder continues to set the pace. He had stiff competition, especially in the bull classes.

The grand champion Hereford bull at the fair was Ben Reed, owned by Rott brothers, Waukegan. Maple Lad the 12th and Maple Lad the 9th, owned by the Robinsons, placed second and third. A junior yearling bull, Robinson placed fourth; senior bull calf, third and junior bull calf, second. Blue ribbons were won on the Hereford cows for Maple Lass. Ford was first in her class and then took senior and grand champion honors. Domestic 22nd, fourth; Maple Lass 12th; third and Maple Lass 13th, second in their classes. The junior champion Hereford was Brue Repeat. The Robinsons either took first or second in the herd classes with blue ribbons for get of sire, calf herd, age herd and third on yearling herd.

WILLARD FARM PRIZE—WINNER

Home of Famous Rock County
Woman Described in Society Report in 1852.

Frances Willard, famous Rock county woman, had excellent agricultural as well as excellent spiritual surroundings in her youth spent on the farm a few miles south of Janesville, which has now become a spot of national fame as the birthplace of one of the nation's greatest women.

The Wisconsin State Historical society has discovered many interesting facts concerning Miss Willard's youth. Among them are the following:

In 1852 the Rock County Agricultural society awarded to Josiah P. Willard, father of Frances E. Willard, first prize in the class of exhibits called "Farms and Gardens."

Had Beautiful Farm.

The awarding committee, in its report, says: "The farm is situated on the east side of Rock river, about two miles below Janesville, and contains about 320 acres, with a road running from north to south through it, leaving about 100 acres west of the road, on which and near the road are the farm buildings, consisting of an ordinary sized dwelling known as the 'Forest Cottage,' neatly constructed and admirably arranged for utility and convenience, while within there seems to be a place for everything and everything in its place."

"After describing the fields, the movable granary, the horse barn with an observatory at the top—from which the proprietor could oversee his whole domain—the fences, some of them of living chestnut and some of iron, the committee then turned to the native and white cedar, the English, American, Norway, and balsam trees, the Scotch pine, the mountain ash, the cypress vine, three varieties of honey-suckle, the flowering alonch, double and single Michigan roses, the cabbages, and all tastefully arranged and giving unmistakable evidence in many instances of the careful and judicious management of the 'Forest Cottage' and its surroundings."

"Miss Willard, in describing her father's love of nature (Glimpses of Fifty Years) says: 'As a gardener and pomologist he had few equals. He also tells an incident which occurred one day when I was working in my little garden south of Forest Home. Perhaps here were the hands with 'finger touch' of which the Rock county committee bears testimony. The autobiography shows how joyous a life Miss Willard as a young girl lived in the midst of her family at Forest Home, their Wisconsin farm residence."

A "Four" That Sets a New Standard The 1923 Buick Four Touring—$885

In beauty of appearance, dependability and economy of operation the Buick four-cylinder, five-passenger Touring has established an entirely new standard for four-cylinder cars.

Its low body with its clean, straight lines, accentuated by the high radiator and straight hood, give it a long, racy appearance that is new to cars of its class. Massive crown fenders add to this distinction, as do the snug-fitting, shapely top and the handsome drum-type head and cowl lamps.

And with this beauty has come a new riding comfort. The seats are deep and low with full leg room in both compartments. The steering column has been changed in position to increase driving ease and the gear shift lever has been raised to meet the driver's hand. A transmission lock, a windshield adjustable from the inside, and a transmission-driven speedometer likewise are among the many new refinements of this model.

Material changes also have been made in motor, chassis and body construction which contribute still further to the wonderful performance record characteristic of Buick cars for twenty years.

The Buick Line for 1923 comprises fourteen models: Four—2 Pass. Roadster, $865; 6 Pass. Touring, $885; 5 Pass. Coupe, $1175; 5 Pass. Sedan, $1595; 6 Pass. Touring Sedan, $1385; 5 Pass. Roadster, $1175; 6 Pass. Touring, $1195; 5 Pass. Touring Sedan, $1585; 5 Pass. Sedan, $1895; 4 Pass. Coupe, $1395; 7 Pass. Touring, $1255; 7 Pass. ### Will Your Extinguisher Work?

It Was All Right Two Years Ago, But How Is It Now?

VERY LIKELY you had a fire extinguisher installed on your car, sometime in the past, or, was it put on your old car, which you traded in, so that your present "bug" is unprotected? At any rate, when you installed the extinguisher you promised to keep it in working order and the insurance company gave you a reduction in rate. Have you ever looked at the little "squirrel-gun," since you had it put on, to see if it is in working order? Do the other members of your family, who drive your car, know how to remove it from its support and to work it so as to get the most effective results? Can you say from your own knowledge that there is any liquid in it? Sometimes this leaks out gradually and practical jokers have been known to empty these "guns" and replace them in this useless condition. You better remove your extinguisher and test it, by discharging a part of its contents into a partially full, which it can be returned without loss. If the gun is only partially full, it seems to have leaked or if it fails to discharge a good strong stream, when operated, these defects should be remedied and the occasion should be seized to remind other users of the car, that there is an extinguisher under the cowl and to tell them how to use it on a fire.

AUXILIARY LUBRICATION DURING "RUNNING IN"

E. A. J. writes: I have just purchased a new car and am advised to use oil mixed with my gasoline during its first 2,000 miles of service. Do you advise this and, if so, what proportion of oil should be used?

Answer: Oil carried in through the carburetor, with the fuel, furnishes lubrication for the cylinder walls, additional to that supplied by the lubrication system of the engine and is undoubtedly a safeguard against scoring the cylinder bore. In the case of engines with very tightly fitted piston rings, during the initial period of operation, before the rings and cylinder walls have worn smooth, a ring which bears very tightly at certain points may scrape the cylinder wall almost dry of splashed oil and auxiliary oil deposited from the carburetor is then of value. A pint of cylinder oil to each five gallons of fuel is a good proportion.

WATER PUMP PACKING

S. A. asks: Is there anything better than ordinary string to use in packing water pump glands? This seems to wear out very soon in my car.

Answer: Regular hot water packing, such as is used by steam engines, is rather better, as its material will stand up better and also because it contains graphite and has some lubricating effect. This can be obtained in the string form. If the pump shaft is roughed up, packing will not last long. The packing should be wound around the shaft in the same direction in which the nut is to be screwed on and the nut should be tightened only enough to prevent leakage, as further tightening only wears out the packing and may bind the shaft.

PERHAPS A DEFECTIVE COIL

P. J. S. writes: The engine of my car recently lost power, began to miss and to overheat and cleaning out the carburetor and gasoline system made no improvement. It has real good compression, but it will not idle down, skip and irregularly and the cooling water boils quickly. Can you give me any helpful information?

Answer: As your carburetor is in good condition, if you cleaned it and the fuel feed system out thoroughly and replaced the parts properly, the trouble should not be in this quarter. As you say that compression is good, the natural assumption is faulty ignition. Weak and uncertain ignition would account for the missing, low power and, to a certain extent, for overheating. Your spark-coil may have gone bad, but you can get a good, reliable 2 1/2-inch spark from each plug cable terminal to the engine, there is no reason to suspect this. Checking up the ignition system thoroughly, including the plugs, should be your first move and if this does not disclose the difficulty you better go over the carburetor system again. Are the springs strong enough to seat the valves reliably, when the engine is running?

Questions of general interest to the motorist will be answered by Mr. Clough in this column, space permitting. If an immediate answer is desired, enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope.

The Standard

World

The owner of a Cadillac is impressed almost immediately by its day-by-day dependability.

But what cements and seals his allegiance to the Cadillac is the continuity of this fine performance over a period of years.

He gradually realizes that this dependability which he prizes is not a mere passing quality to be enjoyed while the car is new, but that it is to endure in all its fullness throughout his entire term of ownership.

From the time of that realization forward, and the realization comes certainly and clearly to every owner of a Cadillac, his whole conception of motoring possibilities changes and becomes infinitely broader and finer.
